General instructions for Chinese languages & scripts

All Chinese words should appear in pinyin without tone marks; the pinyin form should always precede the Chinese characters, which should appear only at their first occurrence. In articles on pre-modern China, traditional Chinese characters (fantizi 繁體字), preferably DFKai-SB fonts, should be used throughout. Example: Chunqiu fanlu 春秋繁露.